DRAWYERS CHURCH

The 211th Anniversary Attended by Many Prominent People

OFFICERS WERE RE-ELECTED

Historic "Old Drawyers" Church, near Odessa, became once more the magnet to draw together, Sunday, within, and without its storied walls, those who are interested in it by ties of tradition and descent. Automobiles began to assemble before the hour of morning service, 10:30 o'clock, "sun time," bringing visitors from a radius of 25 miles, and special pilgrims from more distant points, as far as Philadelphia. These greeted friends in the groups already gathered, and gradually drifted into the quaint edifice, which had been, as usual, decorated by devoted hands.

The occasion was the 211th anniversary of the founding of the church. Rev. Thomas Kerr, of Greenhill Presbyterian Church, of Wilmington, was the speaker at the morning service, Mr. John P. Nichols, also of Wilmington, at the afternoon.

Rev. William Little, pastor of the Odessa Presbyterian Church, was in charge of the services. At the morning services Rev. John Townley, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Middletown, gave the prayer, and Rev. R. S. Hodgson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Odessa, read the scriptures.

At the afternoon services, Rev. E. H. Derriekson, a retired minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Odessa, gave the prayer, and Rev. William Little read the scriptures.

The church was beautifully decorated with hemlock boughs and foxgloves, under the direction of Mrs. Clarence Pool, of McDonough, and Miss Helen Shalleross, of this town. The graves of the churchyard, which has been in use since 1708, also were decorated with flowers, many of them in great profusion.

PROMINENT PERSONS PRESENT

Previous to the services, the "Friends of Old Drawyers" at the annual business meeting re-elected officers of the society as follows: Daniel W. Corbit, president; Clarence E. Pool, of McDonough, vice-president; Miss Cornelia Bowman of Wilmington, secretary; and George Janvier, of Middletown, treasurer. The trustees, headed by L. J. Woods, of Mt. Pleasant, were re-elected.

Cards were distributed for pledges toward the endowment fund, which is being established.

At both services the Dover Male Quintet, John Carrow, C. W. Fisher, E. E. Benson, R. E. Lewis and Herman C. Taylor, with Miss Emma Stewart Stephens as organist, sang several selections and led the congregational singing.

Among the many prominent persons present were Chief Justice and Mrs. Pennell, former Governor and Mrs. Simeon Pennell, United States Judge Hugh Morris, Judge Richard S. Rodney, Francis deH Janvier, of New Castle, and others.

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH NOTES

EPISCOPAL

Sunday, June 11th, 1922. Trinity Sunday.

Services: 10:30 A. M. Morning Prayer and Sermon.

11:45 A. M. Church School.

7:30 P. M. Evening prayer and address.

Note on Trinity Sunday. The observance of Trinity Sunday is of more recent origin than that of the other important festivals of the Church. The ancient church thought it necessary to set apart a special day for the praises that were celebrated every day in the hymns, creed and doxology. But in consequence of the Arian and other heresies—that is, the unbelief of Arius and his followers, who denied this mystery of the Trinity—the church thought proper to order a particular day for its solemn commemoration. And this day was preferred to any other, because it was not until after the Ascension of our Lord, and the coming of the Holy Spirit, that our knowledge of the divine mysteries was completed. It is the proper culmination of all the great festivals of the year. The design of the church, in the Sundays after Trinity, is to instruct us in the Christian life.

Sunday, June 18th, the 217 anniversary services of Old St. Anne's Church will be held in the Old Church. The Bishop of Delaware and the Bishop of Bethlehem, will be the speakers on this occasion. Detailed information and the program will be given in the church notes next week. Bear the date in mind.

Mrs. Wm. D. Brad, an alternate delegate to the meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary, which meets in September, during the sessions of the General Convention, has been notified that she has been appointed a delegate. Members of St. Anne's Parish, Woman's Auxiliary are hoping that she may be able to attend the meeting.

FINE CONCERT

On the evening of Thursday, June 15th, Middletown music lovers will enjoy a treat when Miss Rachel Jane Hamilton, coloratura soprano, will sing at the New Century Club. Miss Hamilton spent the winter in Miami, Fla., as the soprano for Pryor's Band where her sweet personality and charm won a host of friends and admirers. A great honor was conferred on her when she was adopted as honorary member of the Rotary Club. She sang at the home of William Jennings Bryan, at the Kiwanis Club, and before the Miami Music Club and many social gatherings. In Mrs. Grace Porterfield Polka Opera "The Magic Rose", Miss Hamilton was the lovely American Beauty. ## COMMENCEMENT DAY ADDRESS

The Hon. Fletcher W. Stites, of Philadelphia, gave the address at the Middletown High School Commencement exercises, held Friday evening, June 23, at the Club House. His wise and most interesting words to the graduating class were equally entertaining to the large audience present. His address was considered one of the most eloquent and pleasing ever delivered here on such an occasion.

The speaker first referred to the friendships made in our school days as being not only delightful but of great usefulness in moulding character. Such friendships should be prized above rubies because of their lasting effects and sacred memories. Mr. Stites quoted the words of Thomas Jefferson given in the closing hours of his life for his epitaph. He said, "Write Thomas Jefferson the author of the Declaration of Independence, Senator from Virginia and the founder of the University of Virginia". He made no reference to his twice occupancy of the Presidency of the nation. His educational achievements evidently stood higher in his estimation.

Our next aim should be that we should become masters of self, controlling our wills, conquering any evil inclination, maintaining self-respect and becoming captains of our souls. He mentioned Abraham Lincoln as one who was true to the training in his Christian home and to his early convictions.

Our great gain is not what we get out of life but what we put into it; service saves. Living for others being the best way to live for self. The outgo is better than the income. An instance of heroism was given of a young man in the navy. After a great battle, with one arm shot off at the shoulder and a piece of shell in his hip, as one of the officers came up the hatchway to the deck, the wounded boy with his one arm raised in salute, exclaimed, "Any orders, Lieutenant?" and fell dead. He was thinking of victory, not of self.

The world will remember longer and more gloriously Edith Cavell than the Kaiser who ordered her execution. One was true and the other false to humanity. Miss Cavell's last moments were occupied in repeating,

"Abide with me! Fast falls the evening, Lord, with me abide!"

When we use the word evolution, we mean God; when we speak of the plentiful harvest or the beauty of autumn, we mean God. When ships are coming in on the tides, we mean God is moving the ocean our way. We should not make a God out of money, politics or the wonders of nature, but look upward from His works to Himself. If we should ask Roosevelt or Bryan where they acquired their ideas of liberty, justice and equality between man and man, they would refer to Lincoln, Jefferson and Washington. If we could ask Washington that question, he would refer to Miles Standish and the Pilgrim Fathers, and they would refer to Cromwell, Luther and Savonarola, and these noble men would take you back to Calvary, to Paul and the Apostles. These all died for their fellow men. They were like the drummer boy who, when asked to play a retreat, replied, "I have never learned to beat a retreat, I can only play a charge". Seventeen years ago, Henry Ford and his wife had not money enough to buy their Thanksgiving dinner in Detroit; only a little while ago, they paid to our government an income tax of seventy-six million dollars. Therefore, let earnestness, faithfulness and devotion to duty be our purpose in life, that we may listen gladly to the words, "Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these, ye did it unto Me".

In Memoriam

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear father, Gove S. Voshell, who departed this life June 9th, 1917:

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice I loved is still
There is a vacant place in my heart,
That never can be filled.

You shall never be forgotten dear father,
Never shall your memory fade,
Sweetest thoughts shall ever linger
Round the grave where you are laid.

NO NEED FOR WOMEN'S PARTY

THE Women's Party have small cause for complaint that President Harding declined to attend the dedication of their Washington headquarters. Their organization is admittedly political. Neither the Republican nor Democratic parties were good enough for them, so they formed a party of their own rather than affiliate with either of the other two. Doubtless the Women's Party will have candidates in the field at the next election who will do their best to beat all their opponents. There was no more reason for a Republican President to attend the dedicatory ceremonies than for him to attend a Democratic pow-wow or a gathering of Socialists.

Instead of being present in person at their gathering, President Harding sent the ladies a letter in which he rejoiced at the enfranchisement of the women of the United States and wished "that the larger opportunity for American womanhood will be marked by the highest ideals; lofty patriotism, noble inspirations, and great good to our common country". Mr. Harding is President of all the people, and his letter was suitable for reading at a gathering of any group of citizens.

It is fortunate for our country's welfare that by far the great majority of our women voters have no sympathy with sex distinctions when it comes to casting the ballot. Political lines should be drawn on issues far removed from such subjects—issues in which men and women have an equal interest. The roster of the what may be termed the charter members of the Women's Party contains names of women whose prominence is due to agitation extending over a period of years. Constructive leadership has not marked their careers in the public eye. One of them achieved notoriety because she was a delegate to the last Democratic national convention and had the distinction of nominating former Ambassador Davis as the party's standard bearer. But Democracy has lost interest for her, and she has joined the renegades from the Republican ranks in forming the new political party.

What the platform of the Women's Party may be remains to be seen. A communication received from loyal women of Massachusetts charged its leaders with being communistic. However much of truth there may be in that indictment, it is certain that the dedication of the newly opened political headquarters was no proper place for a Republican President, and the patriotic women of the country will rejoice that Mr. Harding remained in the White House.

GETTING RESULTS

THE administration has rendered another signal service to the people of the country in calling coal operators together in an effort to prevent profiteering in fuel during the pending coal strike. Under the immediate direction of Secretary Hoover a scheme has been drawn up for submission to Attorney General Daugherty, that it is believed will keep prices at reasonable levels until the union mines are operating once more. Already prices had begun to rise when President Harding called the coal men together. His opportune action undoubtedly saved millions of dollars to the consumers.

The Value of Records

"We have no way of judging of the future except by the past". Past history, as written into records, forms the guideposts for both nations and business institutions. The ledgers, cash books and journals tell the story of achievement or disaster for any business. The business records, the books of this Company show a constructive policy of business building that has steadily progressed. Our safe handling of millions of dollars of capital, with prompt payment of dividends to ALL investors, is a "Matter of Record".

Why Suffer From Rheumatism?

Do you know that nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment? The pain may be relieved by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, which makes sleep and rest possible, and that certainly means a great deal to any one afflicted with rheumatism.

FOR LILY

By JACK LAWTON

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

It was nearly midnight when David Barris returned to the city, and hunger made him aware of the fact that in his business excitement he had neglected dinner. So he dropped into his favorite hotel and seated himself at his accustomed table.

Successful in his chosen profession of law, Barris was still not happy; life, even in his pleasant phase, proved disappointing. As a boy he had been joyously adventurous; now his days were a tiresome routine. He wondered idly how love, too, had passed him by; surely he had met many women, sweet and fair. He bent to his chop and coffee, and when again he raised his eyes a young woman was seated before him. The waiter came to take her order; she waved him almost impatiently aside.

"I came here to speak to this gentleman," she said. Coldly attentive, Barris leaned forward.

"You wished to see me?" he questioned grudgingly.

"Upon a matter of business, yes," the young woman stood up abruptly.

"I must ask you to come with me at once—to draw up a will for a dying man."

David Barris spoke dryly:

"And am I permitted to know my prospective client's name?"

"Certainly," the girl answered brusquely. "James A. Sterling."

The lawyer's quick glance spoke astonishment. The name of James A. Sterling was of late well known to the reading public.

It had been just two years ago that the financier disowned his only son, because that young man dared seek the old man's charming secretary in marriage. And when Jack Sterling had been literally forced from his father's home, society had next been shocked to hear of the elder Sterling's own marriage to the consoling and ambitious secretary. This young personage was said to rule her aged husband's home with a high hand, to the banishment almost of his crippled daughter.

Lily, in her isolated room of the old mansion, became more isolated. Upon rare occasions when her father visited her his impatience of some forced neglect on her part was evident.

These facts, which Barris had learned at the club and read in the newspaper, flashed through his mind as he hesitated before his uninvited table companion.

"Surely James Sterling must have formerly made a will," he said.

The young woman nodded.

"He wishes to draw a new one," she explained.

She looked back at him as he followed toward the door.

"He is taking a good deal of satisfaction," she went on, "in the thought of frustrating certain people after his funeral. If you know Mr. Sterling at all you will be aware of his eccentricities."

A coupe waited at the hotel entrance. The girl motioned the lawyer to step inside, and took her place at the wheel.

Barris leaned forward.

"Who," he asked sharply, "are you?"

"I am Helen Sterling." Her tone was even.

Barris sat back stiffly. Helen Sterling was the name of the rich old man's scheming wife.

"Here we are," called his companion.

She caught his arm in her eagerness, and smiled at him.

David Barris caught his breath. It was so then, that she won and influenced men. A sorrow went through him, and a strange sense of loss. In the deserted hall of the mansion the girl stood, listening.

"You see," she explained to the lawyer, "I was supposed to take the nurse's place for an hour or two to-night; Mr. Sterling requested it. Then we made our plans. I have even a witness for the will, and his own recollection soon and a physician to declare that James Sterling is in his right mind. The will must be beyond dispute."

"His son?" The thought came unpleasantly to Barris that the appealingly sweet woman at his side was conceivably planning at her aged husband's death to marry her former lover, the joint heir.

"And what," he asked curtly, "about Lily?"

Her eyes shining, the girl turned to him.

"Why, don't you see?" she asked, "it is all for Lily that we have planned. We have to see that Lily comes into her own. Helen Sterling has an insane jealousy of the poor creature, and her influence is uncanny."

"But you?" said the lawyer, "are Helen Sterling?"

"A chance happening of the same first name," the girl told him. "I am James Sterling's niece and Lily's companion."

David Barris started resolutely up the stairs.

"Come," he said.

Scottish Gardeners Valued.

Scottish gardeners are being exported to all parts of the world. A notable instance of the value in which the Scottish gardener is held, is the engagement by a United States millionaire, of a Scotsman for his private grounds, at a salary of $5,000 a year. Not many years ago the man was getting a few dollars a quarter in London. One of the superintendents in a London park can record several instances of his men from across the border getting very high salaries for private establishments on this side of the Atlantic. There is one gardener of Scottish origin in a South London park who says he has "mown the grass" in most corners of the earth, including remote parts of South America. A high percentage of the gardeners in London public parks are Scots, and more than one supervisor can boast of his clan.

BACKERS ARE KEPT GUESSING

About One of the Most Uncertain Sporting Events Imaginable Is a Cockroach Race.

Russian refugees in Constantinople turn their hands to all sorts of money-making devices. The latest and most successful are cockroach races. These are held in rooms which the Russians hire along the Grand Rue de Pera. The story as told by Kenneth L. Roberts in the Saturday Evening Post, is that in the center of each room is a large table with a miniature race track built on it. The owner places a box at one end of the track and waits until his patrons have made their bets on five contestants. Then he opens the box and discharges five enormous cockroaches attached to diminutive silkies. As the box is opened four of the contestants may start briskly around the track, while the fifth may turn abruptly and enter in the wrong direction amid heart-breaking groans from those who are backing his colors. Then the leader of the four racers who are headed in the right direction may stop short and twiddle his feet pensively, and the other three may also stop and cluster around him to investigate the cause of the delay. While the conference is in progress the cockroach that started the wrong way may change his mind, turn and come dashing past the four fillers with his eyes flashing and his tail up. Then the four fillers may recover from their momentary enmity, start briskly up the track again and pass the fifth contestant, who has probably fallen into a brown study and leaned up against the race-track wall with crossed legs and weakly waving feelers. And so it goes, until one of the cockroaches finally pulls himself together and scuttles across the finish line.

SEES POSSIBLE FALL OF MAN

Scientist Points Out How the Race May Sink to the Level of Lower Savages.

"Some millions of years from now an entirely new and more highly organized animal may spring from some ancestral stock now relatively obscure and idle, at first slowly and then more rapidly, to even greater heights of achievement than anything which lies within the capacity of the human species."

After tracing the geologic evolution of the earth so far as man knows it, Dr. Eliot Blackwelder of Harvard university, at the meeting of the geological societies of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, in Toronto, Canada, in these words suggested the possibility of a future usurper of man's pre-eminent place on earth.

"As our modern civilization becomes more and more specialized and diversified, our relations to our environment become more and more complex and our adjustments more delicate," Doctor Blackwelder said.

"Eventually, after all the latest possibilities for advancement possessed by the human species have been exhausted, the race may conceivably sink back to the general level of the lower savages, which are but little above the other mammals."—Kansas City Star.

When Ingenuity Triumphed.

Caught short on time with a New York opening date booked, and facing a huge loss for each day's delay, a moving-picture producer made arrangements to edit, title, and cut the play en route between Los Angeles and the eastern metropolis recently. With a special car equipped as a laboratory and attached to a limited train, the work was found entirely practical even while speeding eastward at a mile a minute or more. Twenty-eight heavy steel containers carried the original film, which remained in the "can" all the time it was not actually in use. Editors and cutters worked continually, stopping only for meals and for a few hours' sleep at night, and on these occasions every scrap of film was returned to its proper container. The work was entirely successful; and by the time the train arrived in New York the film was finished and ready for delivery. —Popular Mechanics Magazine.

On the Jump.

"I reckon you had a right lively time in Kansas City?" insinuated an acquaintance.

"Tolerable," replied Gabe Gosnell of Grudge, "but nothing like what I probably would have had if I wasn't considerably lively on my feet. You see, up in Kay See, if you meet a respectable-looking man after four o'clock in the afternoon anywhere the least bit off to one side, he's a holdup and robs you."

"And if you meet one that don't look respectable, he's a plain-clothes policeman, and pounds you because he thinks you're a holdup. So I was practically on the keen jump all the time I was there, dodging one or the other." —Kansas City Star.

Would Have Helped Some!

Nick Slick, the latest acquisition to the town, had done the "heavy" in no halfhearted fashion.

Smart and glib of speech, he had found the townspeople of Littleville very simple folk and easy game. He had obtained credit right and left, and then he had flown gently away, without ever disturbing the dust or the pile of unpaid bills in his lodgings.

"By gosh," muttered Wilkins, the grocer, who was hard hit by the defaulter, "if I'd known he didn't intend paying, I'd have charged him double, I would!"—London Tit-Bits.

Illustrating Food Values.

To teach food values to children and to combat malnutrition the American Museum of Natural History circulates a traveling exhibit which includes a set of 16 wax models of food suitable for children between the ages of ten and thirteen and models and charts illustrating the composition of six common foods and the contributions of different foods to the body.

CAN NOW WALK AS WELL AS EVER

Esteemed Lincoln Resident Declares Tanlac Has Made a Clean Sweep of Her Rheumatism and Other Troubles.

"I couldn't believe all they said about Tanlac until I tried it myself, and now I never doubt what I read about it," said Mrs. Anna B. Crawford, 2500 N. 23rd St., Lincoln, Neb., wife of a well-known retired business man.

"I got into a badly run-down condition," she continued, "and suffered greatly from indigestion. I had headache for days at a time, slept poorly and woke up mornings so weak and dizzy I could hardly get up. Then rheumatism set in and made walking difficult and I could scarcely use my arms for the pain."

"But Tanlac has made a clean sweep of my troubles, brought back my appetite and enabled me to gain much weight. It is a pleasure to make a statement in praise of this great medicine."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

SUIT COATS DISTINCTIVE; LEGIONS OF ACCESSORIES

A SUIT this summer may mean a coat with skirt or a coat with dress to match, for coats are finding themselves in demand in place of capes which were introduced early to be worn with dresses. Naturally, many of these coats are suggestive of capes, with their easy flowing lines, and therefore they are summery. They take their responsibilities lightly, as coats, but seriously in the matter of distinctive style and decorative qualities, and they have been made much of by both American and French designers of the "tailleur."

In the two suits pictured here, the coats, or jackets, are evidently of Chinese inspiration, but they are developed with decided differences. The coat at the left, worn with a skirt and separate blouse, impresses the raglan sleeve into service, thereby achieving the effect of the Chinese shoulder, and combines beads and silk in the embroidery that does so much for it. It is simple and handsome and may be made of one of the heavier silk crepes or of wool suiting.

The figure at the right portrays an unusual suit, of wool cloth, in which the coat is worn over a dress. In this coat considerable liberty has been taken with the original model in the management of the sleeves (which are in) and the shaping of the garment. But deference to its source opened the way for the more pretentious things. Two of these novel sets are shown here, one with hat and scarf which curtails its duties as shade to become a background of masses of flowers—the high point in a costume—in which the hat, encircled by a wreath of the same flowers, is content to follow suit.

The handsome crepe-satin scarf, with inserts of wool lace and wool tassels, is united to a chic Russian turban of the same materials. Each might go its separate way, but they are most effective when worn together. The sport sets all have matching scarfs and hats or sweaters and hats and in all sets matching bag may be introduced.

Elaborate motifs in beads and embroidery come for the decoration of plain bodices and blouses; some of of inspiration is emphasized in the long silk tassels that weight the points of the coat and in the silk embroidery which embellishes it. The flaring, pointed sleeves repeat the embroidery, but the collar is plain.

"The fairest thing in mortal eyes" has an inherent love of pretty things and keeps about half the world busy answering her demands for them. Providing for her real necessities of dress is one thing—a little company of mere clothes will include them all—but her finery is another story. Legions of accessories lend their aid in the struggle for self expression in dress and the skilled these gorgeous motifs almost cover the whole front of a waist—with extended girdle ends of bead banding and deep fringe falling over the skirt. Then there are swinging fringes of beads that you see along the décolletage of an evening gown; and other fringes attached to girdles, so that the skirt of a dance frock is a glittering mass of swinging beads. The bead girdles are innumerable.

With Summer Gowns.

The little coattails which are promised for wear with summer gowns will be made in an endless variety. They may be of knitted wool and silk perhaps bound with braid, and hanging on loose lines. They may be checked flannel with self-colored skirt; they may be white or colored crepe embroidered in black or colors, or they may be black or colored crepe maroon matching the gowns over which they are worn. In almost any degree of simplicity or elaborateness, in almost any material or color, matching or contrasting as the fancy dictates, these coattails ought to come as near pleasing every one as is possible.

Favorite Hats.

As the season advances the large hat, it is believed, will grow popular, and the black hat will again be an active rival of the bright-hued items of headgear. The soft crushable sport hat and the draped turban are styles much favored for wear with the tailored or sport suits.

The wrap negligee in heavier materials is a thing of all the seasons and is confined to no special one. This season crepe back satin and such soft drapable material lead in this field, and high shades are particularly good.

CORSET OF TODAY

No Indication of the Waistline Becoming Smaller.

Prevalent Style in France is Extremely Low, Not Very Long and Lightly Boned.

The evolution of the corset is extremely interesting, observes a writer in the New York Tribune. Its American history dates back to the days of the Pilgrims, when the first article of this character was made in this country. These God-fearing people wove the material by hand, leaving it in its natural gray state. To bone the corset they used whalebone, which they sewed in by hand—and this garment was not lightly boned as it is in these days. The whalebones were placed so close to one another that one row of stitching supported a bone at either side of it.

Unlike the corset of today, this primitive one covered the body from the waistline upward, leaving the hips practically unprotected. Reaching from one's chest to waist, it gradually diminished in size toward the latter point, where it again widened slightly, ending not more than two inches below the waistline. The top and bottom edges were finished with a white leather binding.

During recent years—clothes having taken to straight lines—many women of both France and America have worn either no corset at all or one quite lightly boned. Gradually, however, they are beginning to perceive the need of some support, however slight it may be. Particularly is this true of the French woman, who was the originator of the corsetless mode, according to an interview with the head of one of our largest American manufacturing concerns, who recently returned from Paris.

The women of America are under the impression that their French sisters have entirely dispensed with cor-

A charming bridesmaid's dress is a combination of venetian lace in scallops and a val lace bodice. With the outfit is worn a hat whose transparent brim is of sea-green horsehair with a val lace crown and rosette of flowers.

LACE PLAYS IMPORTANT ROLE

Decoration Equally Popular in Black and White for Spring and Summer Dresses.

Lace is playing a very important role in the development of spring and summer evening dresses, black, white and colored laces being equally popular. While color combinations are seen, one-tone effects seem to be more highly approved by the better houses, with perhaps just a touch of color contrast in girdle or belt.

A dinner or evening dress of black satin had a waist with a cape back, and the skirt has an over-drapery consisting of lace panels. These panels with a pattern effect, suggesting long-lace scarfs cut in half, each half forming a panel. If desired, embroidered or accordion-pleated chiffon might be used effectively instead of these lace panels.

The gown is all black except for the interesting girdle, which consists of cabuchons formed of narrow metal and colored silk braids, with streamer ends of the braid falling slightly below the edge of the skirt between each panel. An ornamental girdle may easily be purchased all ready to wear; but the woman with nimble fingers and "ideas" may make a very individual and lovely girdle for herself by using rather large flat wooden buttons, criss-crossing them with metal and colored braid, fastening them together closely and finishing with long braid ends. Several colors may be blended in the girdle with very good effect.

Yellow in various shades is in high favor, the rather vivid dandelion being particularly popular. A gown similar to the one described was recently seen in yellow, the girdle being a wreath of green leaves, and a very dainty evening gown in rose chiffon showed not a single note of contrast, the skirt being trimmed about half way up with flower-like petals of self fabric thickly overlaid.

NOW COMES CAPE NEGLIGEE

Chiffon Garment Worn Over Colored or Metal Cloth Slip Makes Charming Attire.

The chiffon cape worn over a colored or metal cloth slip makes the most charming negligee imaginable and is another tribute to the autocratic reign of the cape this season. They are usually made in the high shades with touches of metal galloon or lace or even colored silk embroidery, and can be worn over a number of different slips to give quite different effects, such as flame over beige, flesh or gold.

Something of the fascination of the lovely Spanish mantillas of lace worn over the slip for a negligee, and in the lace back or natural beige is favored.

The wrap negligee in heavier materials is a thing of all the seasons and is confined to no special one. This season crepe back satin and such soft drapable material lead in this field, and high shades are particularly good.

NEW SCARF AND CAPE SETS

Scarf and cape sets are shown in great variety this season. The one pictured here is of most vivid red flannel, applied with white felt, applied with black stitching.

This is inaccurate, because what we term a short corset or girdle they classify as a belt.

There is no change whatever in the lines of corsets. At present there is no indication of the waistline becoming smaller. If anything, the waist is larger. The prevalent style in France is a model extremely low, not very long and quite lightly boned. For evening wear the backs are entirely cut away. So many French women have returned to the corset in the past month that sales have increased 50 per cent.

HATS ARE OF MANY COLORS

Wide Range of Tints Adds to Charm and Variety of Smart Woman's Toilet.

The wide range of tint offered in this season of colors adds to the charm and variety of the smart woman's toilet, but it also necessitates a happy eye for color in choosing the hat to top one's smartest spring costume. This delicate sense of coloring may be called into play to select from an assortment of queer browns and blues, yellows, reds and greens, the tone which will blend to perfection with the suit or frock in question. For many of the tints offered are more or less "queer" variations of the good old-fashioned colors which were their fore-runners. There are delicate browns, ranging from periwinkle through orchid to the palest sky tints; yellow in which one may favor the new dent de lion, or swing one's fancy from the most brilliant of burnt orange to the palest of canary tints.

The spring tendency for fabrics of higher luster has found a staunch ally in the new sport satins which were given a place of prominence at New York's spring fashion show. Immediately after this event, windows on the avenue were a blaze of color, featuring frocks and hats of luster fabrics in the new dent de lion yellow. This new tint is more universally becoming than the paler yellows of former times which had more of green and less of gold in them.

COULD HARDLY STAND AT TIMES

Hips, Back and Legs Would Have That Tired Ache

Everett, Washington.—"For several years I have had trouble with the lowest part of my back and my hips and legs would ache with that tired ache. I could hardly stand at times. To do any kind of work, or to play for that matter, is next to impossible if you are suffering from some form of female trouble. It may cause your back or your legs to ache, it may make you nervous and irritable. You may be able to keep up and around, but you do not feel good. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women. It is especially adapted to relieve the cause of the trouble and then these annoying pains, aches and "no good" feelings disappear.

It has done this for many, many women; why not give it a fair trial—now.

WEIGHING MILK FOR MARKET

Loss Trouble Between Producers and Dealers If Records Are Kept at Both Ends of Line.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)
Producers who ship milk to city distributors have voiced frequent complaints because of the disparity between the figures on the quantity of milk shipped and those of the dealers on the quantity received. In order to locate the cause of complaint by studying the actual loss between the country shipping point and the city plant the United States Department of Agriculture made an investigation on the Baltimore market. Records kept on more than 1,100 cans showed that the loss between the country station and the city plant was less than 1 per cent. The loss on trains, probably due to spilling was only 0.19 per cent; and from the city railroad platform to the plant it was 0.55 per cent.

However, it was found that when the milk was weighed in the city plant there was a shortage of 2.56 per cent on the amount shipped according to can measure in the country. Of this shortage, 0.74 per cent was due to actual losses, while 1.82 per cent was difference between can measure and weight. This is easily accounted for by the fact that cans become dented and battered, which decreases their holding capacity.

In a former investigation by the department an even greater discrepancy any was found between can measure and weight, the difference being over 3 per cent. It would seem that there would be less trouble between producers and dealers if the milk were weighed at both ends of the line.

PROVIDE PLENTY OF WATER

Cows Must Have Abundant Supply in Summer and Winter for Profitable Milk Production.

Successful dairy farmers find that it pays to provide plenty of good, clean, cool water for milk cows. Eighty-seven per cent of milk is water, as is nearly three-fourths of a cow's body. Experimental data show that the amount of water required by cows is in direct proportion to the amount of milk produced. In the summer, the average cow will require nearly three pounds of water for every pound of milk she produces. In one experiment a cow giving 27 pounds of milk drank 77 pounds of water daily. The same cow drank less than half as much when giving no milk. In all cases, it is decidedly good practice to provide an abundance of clean, fresh water, cool in the summer and warm in the winter.

KEEP MILK AND CREAM COOL

Product Will Soon Sour on Warm Spring Days Unless Promptly Placed in Tank.

As warm weather approaches, better care must be taken of the milk and cream. The can of cream must be put into a cooling tank into cold water as possible to keep the cream cool. Unless milk and cream is cooled promptly and well it will sour during the warm spring days.

PLANT CROPS FOR COW FEED

Animals Will Not Prove Profitable Unless Properly Fed—Ensilage and Alfalfa Urged.

Dairy cows are not profitable unless fed properly. Ensilage and alfalfa are the best cow feeds. The corn, kafirs, darso, feterita and corn are good row crops for the silo. If alfalfa cannot be grown, cow peas, soy beans or peanuts are leguminous crops to plant for dairy cow feeds.

Dirty Milk Dangerous

Dirty milk is much more dangerous than dirty water, because disease germs that would starve in water multiply rapidly in milk.

Quality Counts Most

It is not half as important how many cows you keep as what kind and how.

Feeding for Milk

Good feeding is necessary for milk production. The Scotch say "it is by the head that the cow gives milk."

Water Supply for Cow

In the summer a cow will require an amount of water equal to about three times the amount of milk produced.

Effective Fly Spray

A part each of pine tar and nicotine, four parts of coal oil, and 24 parts of water make an effective fly spray for cows.

Greatest Dairy Strangers

The greatest strangers in the world are a scrub bull and good results.

STUDY AND WORK

Columbia Students Give Cafeteria an "Atmosphere."

Variety of Races and Countries Represented in Small New York Eating Place.

There is one cafeteria in New York where the dishwashers discuss relatively and the fourth dimension, where the counter men have master degrees, where the bus boys are prepared to give an opinion on the Genoa conference, or the Kapallo agreement. This cafeteria is located in a one-story building just back of the massive gray-domed library of Columbia university and is best known by its title of "commons," the New York Sun points out.

Needy students are given all the jobs in this cafeteria, with the exception of some managerial positions and those in the culinary department.

A visit to this cafeteria a little afternoon on a week day in the company of one familiar with the place and its habits will yield some interesting information. The man who serves the soup, for example, is a Nova Scotian. A student of Journalism, he is earning his way through by free lancing and by doing odd bits of work. Beside him is a Greek, in this country only a year, but already a master of English.

The dark-skinned man at the grille is a native of Turkistan, a pre-medical student. He has announced his intention of leaving Columbia at the end of the present semester to continue his studies at Iowa State university, because the expenses are less at the latter institution. The 1,100 miles from New York to Iowa he is to travel by emulating Jack London in his arduous days. This man will practice in Persia when he has finished his education.

Behind the salad counter stand two Chinese students, both beneficiaries of provincial government scholarships worth about $90 a month. There are more than 300 Chinese students in New York city alone, it is said, and more than 2,000 in the whole country, mostly sent here by their governments. At the dessert counter is a Japanese.

Further along are to be found native American counter men, like the others, obliged to earn their way through school. The man who operates the butter cutting machine was a seaman all the early years of his life and went up as far as a third mate's berth before he decided to chuck the sea and get an education. He has four years of college and two in a professional school ahead of him, even after he works off his matriculation requirements. Besides this work at the cafeteria he has a job taking care of an old man, a paralytic.

Among the dishwashers is a Hindu, already the possessor of a master's degree and now working on his thesis for a doctorate. In another year he hopes to return to India, where he has a wife waiting for him, and take charge of an Indian college.

There is a cosmopolitan air about these who eat in this cafeteria. At one table there may be seen a group of olive-skinned Filipinos, more than 100 of whom are now studying in New York city. Next to them there may be two or three striking blonde students, presumably Scandinavians. A Mesopotamian, a student of philosophy, is a frequent visitor of this place. So are two Russian students and several Italians. It is probably one of the most cosmopolitan eating places in the city and one of the most interesting when something of the history of the employees here is discovered, and something is learned of their struggle against odds to get an education.

Bottle Message Found After 48 Years.
A bottle inclosing a message from the Austro-Hungarian north polar expedition of 1874, commanded by Captain Julius Payer, has just reached Vienna. The ship Tegthof, which carried the expedition, was jammed in an ice pack on the coast of the newly discovered Franz Josef land in April of that year, and the crew was compelled to abandon her. A letter reporting the fact was written at the time by the first officer and sunk under the ice in a bottle. Last summer the bottle was found by Russian colonists at Nova Zembla and eventually reached Copenhagen, where it has been sent on to Vienna. The letter is well preserved and has been identified by the one surviving member of the expedition.

Time to Stop.
Sinclair Lewis, author of "Main Street," is fond of lecturing as well as writing, and the best story he told us on his arrival here from America referred to an occasion when he was holding forth on the subject of matrimony.

"Mine has been an ideal marriage," he exclaimed (while those who married had not been ideal listened with pained interest). "My wife and I share our sorrows, our joys, our ambitions, our hopes, our—"

Then a Scotsman interrupted: "What about conversation, Mr. Lewis?"

And it is reported that there was considerable silence—London Answers.

He Couldn't Tell

The bus was tilting along at a good speed when an elderly man of ample proportions threw his dignity to the winds by falling into the road in trying to alight while the bus was in motion.

Presently the injured one struggled up and dashed after the vehicle with frantic speed.

"Didn't you see me fall off, conductor?" he shouted.

"Then why didn't you stop?"

"Stop!" ejaculated the conductor. "How was I to know you wanted to get on and do it again?"—Kansas City Star.

BETTER ROADS

FACTORS AFFECTING GRADING

Labor Costs, Character of Soil Graded and Time Limit on Contracts All Counted.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A great variation in the conditions under which grading for highways is done in different sections of the United States is reflected in cost data compiled by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, on 1,350 miles of federal-aid road. The figures cover the four-year period 1917-1921 and are based on a total of 24,500,000 yards of earth.

For the groups of states the average price per cubic yard is as follows: New England and Middle Atlantic states, $1.33; East North Central, $0.68; West North Central, $0.49; South Atlantic, $0.61; East South Central, $0.41; West South Central, $0.35; Mountain, $0.52; and Pacific states, $0.61. The general average price was $0.56.

Probably the most important factor affecting the cost was the amount of grading to be done per mile, the quantity being very small in the groups having the highest prices.

In general it is noticed that where mostly old roads are rebuilt, the light work and tearing up the old pavement greatly affected the cost. The amount of fine grading or trimming required for the higher types of pavement was also a factor.

Labor costs, character of soil to be graded, climatic conditions, time limit on contracts, and cost of detours for traffic also affected the cost.

While each group of states did not have the same volume of grading each year, and therefore the average figure for the whole country is not truly representative, it is interesting to note that the average cost of grading gradually rose from $0.49 in the first quarter of 1917 to $0.67 in the fourth quarter of 1919, and then gradually declined to $0.34 in the third quarter of 1921. It is probable that the latter figure would be somewhat higher had all of the states let work in that quarter.

FIVE BIG QUESTIONS

Are the roads in your county a credit to you, or are you ashamed of them?

Are the roads in your county wide enough for the convenient passage of cars?

Are the roads in your county marked, so that tourists from distant states have no difficulty keeping to the right road?

Are the roads in your county all-year-round roads, or only good-weather roads?

Are the roads in your county such that tourists traveling over them want to come back that way?

KENTUCKY TO BUILD ROADS

House of Representatives Approves $50,000,000 State Road Bond Issue Bill by Big Vote.

Kentucky, famous for several things, is now to add "good roads" to its list. The $50,000,000 state road bond issue bill has been approved by the Kentucky house of representatives by a vote of 63 to 34.

This measure provides for submitting the proposition to the voters of the state at the election next November. If it is approved the money is to be used over a period of five years. To pay off this indebtedness three kinds of taxes are pledged—a gasoline tax, a license tax and a 3-cent road tax.

It Sounds the Road

Facts about what happens under a roadway as traffic passes over it are being obtained by the use of an ingenious device perfected by the bureau of public roads. The device is one of the new instruments developed to discover what thickness of roadbed should be constructed for heavy or light traffic on various kinds of soil.

Source of Much Trouble

A common source of trouble to improved roads is that of poor drainage or total lack of drainage.

Profitable Pasture Work

Almost any reasonable amount of work put on a pasture will prove profitable. A pasture with half a stand of grass is perhaps one of the poorest investments a man can have on the farm.

Crops on Muck Soil

Celery, onions, lettuce and other truck crops are grown extensively on muck soils, but occasionally a grower will have difficulty with the young plants turning yellow after making a good start.

SCIENCE ON FARM

Agriculturist of Today Must Know Business Thoroughly.

Canadian Tillers of the Soil Have Proved That Old Days of Hazardous Methods Have Gone.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Agriculture in Canada has the status of a profession which both its high standard of operation and the prime place it occupies in national life justify. The days when land was casually filled on and farmed without any intelligent understanding of agricultural processes are going with the dwindling availability of the land, and rapidly passing is the epoch of the destruction of soil values, and the abandonment of farms which have been rendered unproductive. Clearer and clearer has become the realization that farming is a specialized profession requiring special training, and in the place of this spoliation there is an intelligent system of crop rotation, preservation of the virtue of the land, a discovery of the nobility of the farmer's calling and a determination to secure and achieve the best possible in everything.

The Education of the Farmer

Agricultural colleges, experimental farms, government literature, railway propaganda, all in an appreciation of the national benefits which accrue, contribute to the education of the farmer who, if he starts out in ignorance, speedily discovers the futility and profitlessness of continuing in this state. It is only of comparatively recent years that farming in Canada has become the comprehensive and exhaustive study it is and its tenets been so widely absorbed, and other farmers who have followed haphazard methods or systems scientifically unsound are gradually forced from necessity into an intelligent study and application of their profession.

This brings us to the city man who is anxious to leave his old life for the greater freedom of the country and take a farm for himself, and, the foregoing holding good, he need not follow far behind the older farmer if he take up the study of his work seriously, bring energy and intelligence to bear upon a following out of the systems of experienced and successful agriculturists, and utilize the results of the expert investigation and research the Dominion places at his disposal. The whole country is working for him and the novice has almost an equal opportunity with the farmer of a lifetime.

A census of Canadian farmers would probably show that fully one-half are not farmers' sons and were not brought up to the life of the farm. Yet none would criticize Canada's farmers on the score of poor farming methods in general, the excellence of their crops with international honors and the universal demand for their live-stock products refuting this effectually. Significant it is too, that practically all the farmers who have achieved the most signal honors at international farming competitions have not been lifelong farmers, but city men who, taking to the land after reaching maturity without the remotest previous knowledge of agricultural activities, have through intelligent study and close application of the best farming methods surpassed the efforts of those agriculturists who have continued doing things on the farm in the way their fathers used to do them.

"My hair is falling out," admitted the timid man to the chemist's assistant. "Can you recommend something to keep it in?"

"Certainly," replied the obliging young man, who had only recently left school. "Here is a nice cardboard box."—Pearson's Weekly.

Baby Specialists.

THAT there are Physicians who specialize on Infant ailments you know. All Physicians understand Infant troubles: all Physicians treat them. It is his profession, his duty, to know human ills from the Stork to the Great Beyond.

But in serious cases he calls in the Specialist. Why? He knows as every Mother knows, or ought to know, that Baby is just a baby, needing special treatment, special remedies.

Can a Mother be less thoughtful? Can a Mother try to relieve Baby with a remedy that she would use for herself? Ask yourself; and answer honestly!

Always remember that Baby is just a baby. And remembering this you will remember that Fletcher's Castoria is made especially for Infants and Children.

The False and the True.

Advertising by the use of large space, the expenditure of huge sums of money have placed on the market, have put in your home, perhaps, many articles that today have been discarded, as you will readily admit.

Do you recall anything that has been modestly appealed to the public than has Fletcher's Castoria: modest in all its claims, pleading at all times—and truthfully—for our babies?

The big splurge, the misleading claims may win for a time, but the honest truth-telling advertiser is like the old story of the tortoise that beat the hare.

Mothers everywhere, and their daughters, now mothers, speak frankly, glowingly, enthusiastically in praise of Fletcher's Castoria. Speak of it lovingly as a friend that has brought comfort, cheer and smiles to their little one.

To them: to these true mothers no argument can induce them to set aside their bottle of Castoria, their old friend, that they might try even another and unknown remedy for babies. Then, would YOU think of going to YOUR OWN medicine chest to find relief for Baby's troubles? Can you not separate the false from the true?

MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

ATLAS PORTLAND CEMENT

"The Standard by which all other makes are measured"

PROBABLY the first place you ever noticed concrete was in concrete sidewalks. This was only about twenty-five years ago. Today hardly any other kind is built.

Concrete has proved its economy, its suitability, its permanence. Even though most of those first walks were built before concrete construction was properly understood, some of them are still giving good service.

Today your dealer is able to give you the same cement that has stood the test of over twenty-five years' use on all types of work. For more than a quarter century Atlas Portland Cement has been "the Standard by which all other makes are measured."
